CHICKENS RUNNING AT LARGE

Unlimited Range Is Nuisance When Fowls Are Given Privilege of Stables, Sheds, Etc.

Unlimited range has its advantages, but if unlimited range means that the fowls have the privilege of the stables, wagon sheds and roosting on the wheels and machinery, then the unlimited range is a nuisance. To give poultry plenty of room does not imply that the fowls should go where they please. A hen has no place in a stable any more than a cow has the right in a poultry house. Little by little the droppings accumulate during the season until everything is too filthy to handle, and the work of cleaning will be more than the real value of the fowls. Keep poultry away from other stock.

GUINEAS AS SUMMER LAYERS

Egg Is About Two-Thirds as Large as That of Chicken—Has Decidedly Better Flavor.

There are two different breeds of guineas, the white and the pearl. Both breeds are excellent summer layers, and the eggs are of superior quality. The guinea egg is about two-thirds as large as the hen egg, and has a decidedly better flavor. The guinea hen begins to lay as soon as the weather gets warm in the spring. If they are well fed during the winter they will begin to lay earlier than if they are only half fed through the winter.

If there are as many male birds in the flock as there are hens they will mate off in pairs, but if only a few male birds are kept several hens will mate with one male and all or nearly all of them will lay in the same nest. Most guinea raisers recommend keeping one male bird for every five hens; we kept only two male birds with 20 hens last year and the eggs hatched as well as they did when we kept more males. The fewer male birds that are kept in the flock, the less quarrelsome they are.

HEN IS THE BIGGEST EATER

Fowl Turns Out More Food, According to Weight, Than Best Dairy Cow—Marvel of Efficiency.

The hen is the biggest eater of all domestic animals. A three and one-half pound hen, according to Doctor Rice of Cornell, will eat 110 pounds of food in a year. She will lay 30 pounds of eggs, or perhaps more. Eggs are highly concentrated food, and the hen that transforms hundred pounds of bran, grass, grain and gravel, and other scraps into one-third their weight of fresh eggs, is a marvel of efficiency. The hen therefore turns out more food, according to her weight, than the best dairy cow.

TO BREAK HENS FROM SITTING

Wait Until She Gets Well Settled Then Place Her in Open Coop—Soon Forgets Desire.

To break a hen from sitting let her sit a day or two until she gets well settled, then put her, preferably with two or more other hens, into an open coop in full view of the poultry yard, where she can see her free sisters scratching around enjoying themselves. Hens are jealous creatures and a sitting hen placed in such a position and well fed, soon forgets her desire to sit, and when given her freedom on the morning of the fourth or fifth day she will happily resume the duties of her coop.

been considered shiftless and improvident are catching the spirit of thrift and enterprise and many of them are now imitating their pale-faced neighbors in the race for advancement and progress.

Oklahoma has always been a fine country for raising cattle and this employment still forms one of the most important industries of the State.

Traveling from near the center of the state to the southern border I saw some beautiful country. Level prairie farms, with fine pastures and green fields with scarcely a stump or tree in sight, only in the blue distance.

In Washita and Red river bottoms the ground is especially rich and fertile.

All things considered though, I do not like Oklahoma any better than I do Kentucky. And while I had a nice time there, and expect to return at some future date (if I live) still I confess that as I found myself in the vicinity of home, and heard the names of adjacent towns called out, I leaned forth with pleased expectancy until my eyes rested on old familiar scenes.

At present I am visiting my son at Providence. I attended church here last night and heard Rev. King of the Methodist church, deliver his last sermon before going to Conference. He did well, and the truths which he spoke should be sounded forth to all the world.

While I have been visiting this year I have striven to improve the time for the Lord. Have attended public worship a number of times and have testified to the goodness and mercy of God. Though weak and unworthy, I can say like David of old, "I have praised thy name O God, in the great congregation."

We read and hear much about Commission form of Government or Commissioners to constitute the fiscal court of our county. We would like to read an article from some one explaining this new law. Some one who is well informed on questions of public interest, and will give a true explanation.

Four years ago they sneeringly called Woodrow Wilson the school-teacher. Then his class was assembled within the narrow walls of Princeton college.
They were the young men of America. To-day he is the world teacher, his class is made up of kings, kaisers, czars, princes, and potentates. The confines of the schoolroom circle the world. His subject is the protection of American life and American rights under international law. Without orphaning a single American child, without widowing a single American mother, without firing a single gun, without the shedding of a single drop of blood, he wrung from the most militant spirit that brooded above a battlefield an acknowledgement of American rights and an agreement to American demands.—Ollie M.
James, Senator from Kentucky, Democratic National Convention in his speech at St. Louis, Mo.

The President's National Policy.

In the crisis he faced the President should have had the hearty support of every man.

woman, and child in America.

For it developed that Mr. Wilson pursued exactly the right course.
Any other attitude of the President would have plunged us either into war or prolonged the submarine controversy. No matter what other construction may be put, I say Germany's answer was an open admission that Wilson was not only right, but fair.
Another President might have gone to war with Germany, without sending any kind of note. And we all ought to thank God that there was a Woodrow Wilson in the White House to withstand the pressure of the war seekers on the one hand and the war partisans on the other.
Wilson's course was the middle road, and he fearlessly took that road. We have all much to be thankful for, for that, as true Americans and with allegiance to one flag, and one flag only."—Charles Lieb, of Indiana, House of Representatives, July, 1916.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

The increasing number of serious accidents at railroad grade crossings is a matter about which we should all give more serious consideration. As more people come to use the automobile, unless they use greater care than ever before, these terrible accidents will multiply.

The location of these crossings is well known to the drivers and it is difficult to understand why anyone should run the risk of accidents by driving over them without taking the time to look or listen for approaching trains.

And they should remember that the noise of their machine makes the sense of hearing not infallible. The question now is not one of liability, it is a case of life and death. No matter what one may conceive his rights to be at railroad crossings it is an obvious truth that any man is a fool who contests the right of a locomotive engine by seeking to occupy the crossing first with his own vehicle. No matter what the hurry, there is certainly time enough for everyone to take precautions for his own safety at such places, and the simplest precaution ordinarily will suffice. "Safety First" is the right motto to bear in mind.

On the 22nd. of September an observation was made at the Depot Street railroad crossings in this city.

The observer stood at this crossing from 8:00 a. m. to 12:00 noon and from 1:00 p. m. until 4:00 p. m. During this time 58 horse-drawn vehicles and 12 automobiles passed over this crossing, and during the same time there were 6 passing trains. The observer reports that each one of the trains gave warning of its approach by whistle and ringing of the bell. Not a single one of these vehicles, either horse-drawn or automobile, stopped or slowed up to "look or listen."

The drivers of six of the fifty-eight horse-drawn vehicles, before attempting the crossing, did look to the right and left. None of the other horse-drawn vehicles and not a single automobile driver looked either to the right or left. Upon this state of facts the drivers of such vehicles are courting death, and, unless more care is exercised, it is simply a question of time until the town will be shocked with the details of a terrible accident at some of these grade crossings.

AN INVITATION OF WAR.

It is reported by a staff correspondent of the World, cabling from Copenhagen, that Ambassador Gerard is returning to the United States to discuss with the President "the growingly dangerous situation regarding submarine-war resumption which is strongly urged" throughout Germany.

The German Imperial Chancellor, in his speech in the Reichstag yesterday, frankly recognized that sentiment and pandered to it in his assertain that—

A German statesman who would hesitate to use against this enemy every instrument of battle that would really shorten this war—such a statesman should be hanged.

It was hardly a week ago that Ernest Bassermann, one of the leaders of the National Liberal Party, said in a speech to his constituents that "the submarine campaign had been only postponed, not abandoned."

Whether the submarine issue again menaces the peace of the United States depends more upon the American people than upon the German people.

If President Wilson shall be defeated in November, we believe that the German Government will resume submarine warfare. The President's defeat will inevitably be interpreted in Berlin as a complete repudiation of his policies. The German-American campaign against the President's re-election will justi-fy this interpretation. The Imperial Government will naturally assume that it need no longer be obligated by its pledges to President Wilson. It may not be sure that Mr. Hughes' policies will be pro-German, but it will know the President has been defeated and that Hughes cannot take office before March 4, 1917.

Between the election and the inauguration there will be a state of diplomatic chaos if the President is beaten, and the German Government will have every temptation to take advantage of it. This state of chaos will in eality endure much longer, for a Hughes Administration means a President and a Cabinet with no first-hand knowledge of the situation and no definite information about the details of previous negotiations and understandings. It means, likewise, the appointment of new Republican Ambassadors who are no less ignorant than their official superiors.

Out of such a situation almost any international disaster may result.

Should the American people reject the President they must expect that German popular sentiment will construe that rejection most favorably to the German cause and put new pressure upon the Imperial Government to resume submarine operations.

The Imperial Government is more and more susceptible to popular sentiment, and the defeat of President Wilson would furnish a golden opportunity to renew the business of submarine murder, in the belief that no real risk had been assumed of a war with the United States.

No thoughtful American citizen, unprejudiced by partisan considerations, can contemplate even the possibility of President Wilson's defeat without grave apprehension. It seems to The World that on this issue alone public sanity and public common sense should make the President's majority overwhelming.

Only in the midst of the Civil War itself have there been insurmountable objections to a change in Administration. To make an experiment at such a time as this, to throw all the foreign relations of the United States into doubt and confusion, to chance calamity for the sake of a change in Government without even knowing what the change means—that cannot be reconciled with the sober, thoughtful, responsible character that the American people have hitherto shown in great crises.

The defeat of President Wilson would be an invitation to war. It can mean nothing else.

School Fair at Crayne

Saturday a Success.

There were many present to enjoy the kind hospitality of the good people of Crayne and to help make the day pleasant and profitable.

Crayne won first place, Chapel Hill, second. Other schools made good showings.

One of the best school days the county has ever had was the day of the Division Fair held at Crayne last Saturday. The day was ideal, the roads were fine. Long before the time which had been set for the beginning of the program, people from all the schools in that part of the county were gathering to show their interest in and their appreciation of the splendid work which is being done by the schools in that division.

The first part of the morning was given to the selection of the judges for the day and then after that task was finished the remainder of the morning was given to the contests in arithmetic and reading. At twelve o'clock a sumptuous dinner was served and in this the good people of Crayne showed their appreciation of the many people who had come to spend the day in their little town. The people of Crayne together with the people of the surrounding country showed themselves equal to occasion and with true Kentucky hospitality did every thing in their power to make the day a success and to make their guests for the day feel that it was good to be there.

Immediately after dinner, the drawing contests were held in the schoolhouse and the contests in story telling and spelling were finished in the church. The spelling contest was one of the most interesting features of the work. The first prize was won by Dyersburg and the second by Chapel Hill.

The exhibits were splendid. The work was good and well displayed. Most of the schools had booths and the work on display was a credit to the schools of the county. Most of the schools had splendid exhibits in Manual Training, Domestic Science and Agriculture. The first prize on General Exhibit was awarded to Crayne and the second prize to Chapel Hill. Athletes are always an interesting feature of the school fair program. All the first prizes in athletics went to Francis, Chapel Hill getting two seconds and Jackson one. The schools represented and the number of ribbons won by each follows:

	First	Second
Crayne	18	18
Chapel Hill	9	15
Francis	7	1
Dyersburg	7	5
Union	5	6
White Hall	3	3
Owen	3	1
Jackson	1	1

The County Fair will be held at Marion Saturday, Oct. 28.

Guileless Toledo Man Loses Life's Savings.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Joseph Pertile of Toledo, O., reported to the police that he was robbed of $1,600 on a passenger train today by a man who represented himself as an official of the road. The robbery occurred as the train was leaving the station. Pertile said the man asked him to show his ticket and then asked for his money, saying, "You are not safe with it in your clothes, the road will be responsible for it."

Pertile, who was enroute to Salt Lake City to work, complied with the stranger's request. The money stolen represented his life's savings.

TROUBLE

FOR TEUTONS

German Chancellor Will Weather Oncoming Storm in The Reichstag.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Supported by General von Hindenberg and a majority of the German populace, Chancellor Bethmann-Holweg is expected to weather the storm which will probably breed in the Reichstag when it reconvenes on September 28.

A campaign for the renewal Germany's submarine warfare will be indulged in by the reichstag members who are critics of the chancellor. Germany's submarine advocates have never forgiven their chancellor for yielding to the demands of United States in respect to how the empire's submarines are handled, and it is expected that they will make trouble in the legislative halls. Some of them are already proposing a coalition of the ministry.

The attention of the entire country is resting on the meeting of three hundred socialists here today preceding the opening of the reichstag. They are supporting Chancellor Bethmann-Holweg.

From these reasons it is expected that the forthcoming convening of the reichstag will be one of the most important ever held, as well as one fraught with gravest possibilities. Although subject to sharpest criticism by his opponents, the German chancellor still retains a strength serious enough, it is believed, to carry his points of argument in helping to shape the destinies of the German empire in its severe hour of trial.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequent symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidney should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy to use. It has acted effectively in many cases in this vicinity.

Can Marion residents demand further proof than the following testimonial?

P. J. Pool, Nortonville, Ky., says: "I had kidney trouble for about ten years. My back ached at night and I was lame in the morning. I tired easily, was nervous and had headaches and dizzy spells. My sight was also affected. The kidney secretions passed too frequently and contained sediment. Colic always settled on my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me more relief than any other medicine I had ever tried."

Price 50 cents at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Pool had. Foster-Milburn Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

SUBMARINE BREMEN

A British Captive With a Cargo of Diamonds Worth Twenty-five Million Dollars.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 3.—The Bremen, the second German merchant submarine, recently reported on its way to this country from Germany, has been captured by the British, and is now held a prisoner in Falmouth Harbor, according to Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, physical director of the University of Pennsylvania, who returned to his city today after a summer as a major in the medical corps of the British arm.

British officials refused to admit the capture of the Bremen, Dr. McKenzie added, but the general public is convinced of the truth of the report now current in every part of England.

Dr. McKenzie reached New York yesterday on the American Line steamship New York and came direct to this city this morning. The English press first learned the capture of the Bremen, Dr. McKenzie said, by the dispatch to Falmouth of several diamond speculators, who were missing. It was learned later, was to appraise the $25,000,000 worth of diamonds which the submarine carried.

The cargo consisted of a great variety of cut and uncut stones, it was reported, and for several of the large diamonds and jewelry firms in this country, Dr. McKenzie did not see the Bremen, he says.

The system of capturing submarines was described by Dr. McKenzie. "Thousands upon thousands of trawlers and other small boats surround the British island and lay wire nets to trap the submarines," he said. "They are filled with an electric bell attachment. When a submarine becomes enmeshed a bell rings, an aeroplane rises and spots the submarine, and within a couple of hours war vessels have made the enemy captive."

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

IS THERE AN APOSTASY IN MORALS?

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D.D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT.—And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind to do those things which are not convenient.—Rom. 1:28.

In scripture the perfect man is described as the man of clean hands and a pure heart, that is of correct life and pure motives. Every law of nature and ethics proves that to have a pure stream there must be a pure fountain, however pure the course of the stream may be. It is no wonder, then, that every good man prays: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, renew a right spirit within me; cleanse me from secret faults."

For some years many of the greatest teachers of the word of God have insisted that the race of mankind is now in the apostasy referred to in Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians in the use of the term "time of falling away." With very many observers this falling away has been along the line of impurity in religious teaching. But it is not to any such apostasy that we now wish to refer, and we ask very earnestly, Is there a present apostasy to avoid? We are not going to minimize and insist that there is, but we wish to think of a few things with reference to the present state of morals.

How can we check up on morals? Perhapses might start with the law of the Christian life—the law of grace—which in itself is the law that produces the best results; or the Sermon on the Mount might be in view, which is indeed that of the Christian law, and above that of the decalogue. The moment we begin to estimate a man from the Sermon on the Mount we are overwhelmed for obedience to that law has very scanty illustration with the race of mankind as a whole, and all are guilty with respect to the supreme love to God demanded. But we do see at once to the ten commandments which are not abrogated as far as a general standard of morals is concerned.

The first two commandments deal with the worship of God. Are not the words of the text true that men do not like to "retain God in their knowledge"? Do they not worship practically everything else but God? The third commandment deals with profanity and while we cannot check up comparatively, we know that today the name of God is most profanely used by men and quite sad to say by large numbers of women. The idea of a day set apart for the worship of the living God and separation from the world is now ridiculed, and such a day is practically gone.

Coming to the sixth commandment, which says "Thou shalt not kill," let us use. Popularly speaking murder put at the head of the list of sins, names, and that is usually done against the taking of the life of the living unlawfully. Three years ago it was common saying that the brotherhood of man was so far advanced, that the federation of the world was so nearly realized, that anything like bodies of men making war on each other was utterly unthinkable. What is the situation today? A dozen bodies are in the most bloody stage of war that the race has ever known; the soil of Europe, Asia and Africa beset with the blood of thousands and tens of thousands of men, and while some of the forms of barbarism which characterized ancient times are absent other things have taken their places, their object being to destroy foes by death or maim for life.

It was with reference to the breach of the seventh commandment that the expression of "the reign of lust" was made. Evidences of low morals as to this commandment are somewhat difficult to obtain with accuracy, but the trials of the divorce courts; the scandals of various cities set forth the satisfaction of lust; the steady demand of the habitues of the theaters for plays that necessitate marital infidelity and the exposure of the persons of women; the advertisements of theaters; and other advertisements in many popular pictorial publications, furnish some evidence and, probably at the present time as never before, the style of dress of a very large number of women concerning which decency forbids further remark, reaches a climax.

If the breach of the eighth, ninth and tenth commandments are not comparatively as conspicuous as those of the sixth and seventh, yet dishonesty, lying and covetousness still carry down their victim and no man escapes their touch.

Reformatory movements of various kinds; good laws on morals well enforced; the rise of public sentiment against impurity and murderous cruelty of the day, will do much to relieve the situation, but the only adequate and lasting method of public reform is the power of God given in the new birth.

There are oftentimes many jobs, such as raking lawns, washing cars and buggies, spreading, pruning, spraying, mowing, etc., to be done about the home. The Bureau will be glad to furnish reliable boys, from the age of fifteen to twenty-one, to do any kind of work, during the hours before and after school and on Saturdays. The Bureau will also see that work is done properly and that reasonable charges are made. If at any time during the school year, you should chance to need a boy or any number of boys, you can find them by calling J. H. Moore at the school building.

USE NO BANDAGES

IN NEW SURGERY

BRITISH PILE UP SHELLS AT BASRA

Latest Method of Healing Obstinate Wounds Proves Great Success.

ARE SPRAYED WITH OZONE CAPTURED SHIPS IN TIGRIS

Simple Possession of the River Tigris Is Sufficient to Control the Population for Many Miles Inland.

General Headquarters Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force, Basra.

London.—Bandages are eliminated in the latest method of healing obstinate wounds here. This is one of the marvelous developments of surgery to which the war has given impetus. One of the horrors of hospitals is dressing wounds. Strong, brave men scream involuntarily with pain every day when the bandages are removed and the wounds treated.

At Queen Alexandra's military hospital today several patients were exhibited undergoing the new treatment. Two of these men were most severely wounded in September of last year, and for ten months had been treated in the customary way without any sign of healing. On August 2 they were brought to this hospital, the bandages were flung away, the wounds were subjected to repeated applications of a stream of ozone, being lightly covered with a loose layer of lint in the intervals, and in four days healing was in rapid progress.

This treatment is simplicity itself. Oxygen passes from a reservoir into an electrical machine which converts it into ozone; the ozone flows out through a fine metal tube. The machine is wheeled close to the patient's bed, the wound uncovered, and a stream of the microbic-killing ozone flows into the deepest recesses. No painful dragging off of bandages, no rebounding of the limb to hurt and exhaust the patient.

New Treatment a Success. Here was seen a soldier who had lost his right foot, with a stump covered with skin so healthy and hard that he could walk upon it, a surgical marvel.

What might be called the open-air treatment of wounds has come to stay. At the Herbert hospital is a soldier with a bad compound fracture of the leg. The limb is not swathed in many yards of bandages as was the custom, but lies between bandages to secure immobility and is covered only with a single layer of lint. The lint is kept constantly wet with peroxide of hydrogen. Surrounding the leg is a large cage covered with a sheet of thin butter muslin, so that the wound is continually refreshed by a free current of air. Extremely rapid healing and freedom from the agony of manipulation are the great gains from this mode of treatment.

The whirlpool bath is entirely a war invention, from which excellent results in cases of stiff joints have been obtained in France. It consists of a small oblong bath filled with water which is kept in continuous movement by a miniature propeller revolved at a very high speed by means of an electric motor. A stiff arm or leg, hand or foot, placed in the bath and kept there for some time is much improved by the stimulus of the running water. Marvelous examples of bone curving may be seen, such as the transference of a large piece of bone from the leg to fill a gap in the arm bone or jaw.

French foot is being more or less successfully treated by massage, operation, and other methods.

After the Surgeon the Masseur.

All sorts of joint injuries go to Humpersmith hospital, and there, as well as at other hospitals, is to be seen a collection of ingenious exercises for restoring mobility. When the surgeon has done all that he can the patient goes to the masseurs and the exercisers. If his wrist is stiff he twists a bar with graduated resistance; if he cannot fully close his hand he grasps a thick bar and turns it, passing on to thinner and thinner bars as the hand improves; the patient with a stiff knee is put to exercise on a stationary bicycle; others, according to the nature and situation of the defect, practice rowing, climbing ladders, pulling on weighted ropes; and with these curative exercises is combined massage, with electric treatment, and other remedies.

In the laboratories of the Royal Army medical college vaccines are made to secure the men against typhoid fever, which used to be more fatal in war than the bayonet and the bullet combined; paratyphoid fever, so rare formerly, so common now in France; the cholera of Soolunki and Egypt; and pneumonia, one of the soldier's worst trench enemies in cold weather.

About ten million doses of these vaccines have been sent out from Millwall since the war began. Among them is a most valuable mixed vaccine which gives protection from typhoid and the two forms of paratyphoid fever. This has been in use since the war began, the nose-spray taken for discovering whether a stranger who comes in contact with soldiers is carrying the infection of spotted fever at the back of the nose, for although himself quite free from the disease, such a carrier might create an epidemic in a camp.

Around the steamer is a great black ship, with a golden star and the letters "P. S. S." painted on her funnel. The letters translate "Prize steamer."

I have seen so many prize steamers in the East that it seems as though British captures of Germany's mercantile marine must compensate largely for her losses through Germany's submarine campaign. The prizes still retain their German names, probably for the purpose of identification, although they fly the red ensign and are operated by government crews.

Anchored in the stream is a great black ship, with a golden star and the letters "P. S. S." painted on her funnel. The letters translate "Prize steamer."

Stuck on the side of the ship is a large black bird, with its wings spread wide, and black dots on its body, which represent the eyes of the birds.

On the deck of the ship is a large black dog, with its head turned to the right, looking towards the shore. The dog is wearing a collar with a tag attached to it.
